Macduff Everton updates travel photography in the same way that Ansel Adams updated 19th-century photography of the West. He captures strange and eloquent moments in which time, and the world, seem to stand still.-Andy Grundberg, New York Times Only a handful of photographers have succeeded in capturing the majestic landscapes of the American West. Now, Macduff Everton takes his place among them, with magnificent panoramic photographs that deserve to be viewed alongside those of Ansel Adams and Eliot Porter. Evertons lush, romantic pictures-each a cinematic tour-de-force of light and color-present breathtaking views of the Grand Canyon, Monument Valley, Yosemite, Crater Lake, Mount St. Helens, the Missouri Breaks, Big Sur, the Painted Desert, and other fabled vistas of the American West. With lyrical commentaries and sketches by artist and writer Mary Heebner, and an introduction on the Western landscapes importance to American history and lore by best-selling author Edmund Morris, this glorious book is Evertons masterwork. MACDUFF EVERTON is one of the worlds most distinguished and prolific travel photographers. His work is widely exhibited and collected by museums around the world. He lives in Santa Barbara, California, with his wife, Mary Heebner. MARY HEEBNER is a writer and artist whose mixed-media collages, works on paper, and limited edition artists books have been exhibited and collected throughout the United States and abroad. EDMUND MORRIS is a Pulitzer Prize-winning biographer, best-selling author, and an astute historian and commentator on the United States, his adopted country. 76 panoramic photographs in full color, 12 sketches, map, 13 1/2 x 9 1/2

Around 9 p.m. on August 31, 2004, I saw a bright patch of light about half the size of the Moon near the western horizon. It moved slowly upward. The Sun, the Moon, the planets, and the stars all rise in the east and set in the west. That eastern horizon eventually comes up over the horizon and you see it!
